JIU JITSU USED BY STRANGLER

A "strangler," newest of thugs, good-looking and well-dressed, and versed in all the wiles of jiu jitsu, is causing a lone reign of terror among the women in the Brighton-Allston apartment house district.

The "knee and hammer-lock" desperado is so daring that the Brighton police, whom he has eluded for weeks, believe that he is either a peculiarly desperate criminal or a madman.

Already at least a half dozen terror-stricken women have sobbed out their stories to the police.

Women keep themselves behind locked doors in the district, their nerves being reminiscent of the days of the "Lone Wolf."

The man apparently cares nothing for the police, cares not if his victim is accompanied by another woman, or not whether night hides his work or a bright sun gleams down.

His method, as described by his victims, is invariably the same. He walks toward his prospective prey and his appearance gives her no cause for alarm.

Once behind her, however, he leaps

Enforcing Law Surprise for Trotzky Let Them Combine Why Tie Our Hands?

By Arthur Brisbane

IRVINGTON, New Jersey, decided to enforce old blue laws that forbid "worldly occupations on the Sabbath." Yesterday at 5 p. m. 120 persons had been arrested, including six reporters, locked up for taking notes; motormen and others.

GOLF, THEATRES, movies, any sport or business activity, are against the law. To enforce it occasionally and learn how people feel is wise.

How long would prohibition last if it were as hard for the big man to get his champagne as it is for the little man to get his beer?

MR. FORD'S weekly says: "He (the Jew), controls the revolutionary elements of the world, on one hand, and the ultra-conservative elements on the others; so he has equal power in Communistic Russia and in capitalistic England."

THAT WILL BE news to Trotzky, the only conspicuous Jew in the Russian government, from whom his powers have recently been taken one by one.

Mr. Ford also prints: "The international Jew is in direct control of all financial centres of government, including the United States Federal Reserve system."

Secretary Mellon and Mr. Strong, of the Reserve bank, will learn something there.

The four richest men in the world are Rockefeller, Ford himself, Mr. Mellon and George F. Baker—according to those that should know. The Rothschilds compared with them are only a child's bank. The Jews have evidently shown great moderation, controlling finance, but letting "Goyim" have the real money.

POPE BEGS MEN TO MAKE GIRLS DON MORE GARB

Rome, Dec. 13 (A.P.)—Modern fashions for women were characterized as "an outrage in every sense against human and Christian dignity" by Pope Pius today in addressing 1,000 representatives of the Federation of Catholic men.

His displeasure over the present modes, the pontiff urged fathers to check their daughters and wives' irreverence and corruption as expressed in immodest clothing."

'DREAM DEATH' VICTIM'S DESERTED AUTO FOUND

East Bridgewater, Dec. 13.—Acting on a story that George H. Chamberlain, forty-two, failed in his sleep of enemies who wanted to murder him, Chief of Police Everett F. Russell and a posse today scoured the woods and found Chamberlain's abandoned automobile at the edge of the Beaver Pond woods.

The story of the "dream fears" was unfolded to the police by the missing man's wife, Mrs. Eliza Chamberlain. With the discovery of the automobile search for his body was renewed with fresh vigor in the foot-deep snow in the wooded section.

Chamberlain disappeared on November 20 after drawing $10,000 from local banks where he had savings accounts. The automobile found today had apparently been standing on the little-frequented road through the woods since before the last snow storm.

HER FOURTH HUSBAND.

Alarmed by her husband's long absence, Mrs. Chamberlain realized the significance of the dream talk theory of foul play.

"My husband has been murdered, I am convinced, and I am sure his body lies under the snow in the thick woods back of the mill pond," Mrs. Chamberlain told Chief Russell.

The missing man was her fourth husband and she had been married to him a little more than a year.

"Niece" Takes Stand in Crabtree Will Fight

Mrs. Carlotta Cockburn of San Gabriel, Calif., claimant to part of the estate of Lotta Crabtree, millionaire actress, took the stand in Probate Court today to establish her claim to a niece's share.

Quietly dressed in a black felt hat and gray overcoat the gray haired woman presented a picture of calm confidence in her claim to the Crabtree millions. Quietly she told her story, while Judge Prest and a crowded courtroom listened.

Her earliest remembrance, she testified, centered around her visit to Uncle Ed Bullock on his Missouri ranch.

"He said he didn't like me to be called Crabtree, that my name was Bullock."

ARMED TRIO ROB SOUTH END STOREMAN OF $868

"Buck up, you! One peep and I'll drill you!"

Emphasizing these words with a gun aimed at their victim's head, three thugs today held up and robbed Morris Siegel, a grocer of 1565 after trapping him behind the counter of his store at No. 524 Columbus avenue, South End.

While the man with the gun forced him, step by step, into the rear room of the store Siegel noticed one of the robbers going through the cash register while another walked to the door as a "lookout."

After stealing the money the robbers left the store, warning their victim to make no outcry as they fled.

When Siegel thought the coast was clear he ran from his store and called for police. Outside a fire

East Bridgewater, Dec. 13.—The "Covered Wagon" assumed a new mantling here today when more than 150 strike-breakers arrived for work at the Old Colony Foundry in a huge interest has completely covered with ample canvas about the top and sides.

Two deputy sheriffs with riot guns across their knees, ready for action, rode into town on the front seat with the driver and two others were in the body of the box, together with armed special policemen.

At high speed the strange-looking vehicle raced to the foundry gates while strikers, lined on the street, booed and jeered, but refrained from the missile hurling which had been feared.

HOME BOWED IN GRIEF OVER DISAPPEARANCE MYSTERY
This is the George H. Chamberlain home in East Bridgewater, from which the husband and stepfather mysteriously vanished a fortnight ago. Efforts of police to find trace of him or evidence of foul play have proved unavailing. He feared some mysterious foes would kill him, and often talked in his sleep.

'INNOCENT' IS RUM CASE PLEA

Denying all charges preferred against him, Francis B. McIntyre, boatswain, testified in his own defense at the court-martial today in which he and three other members of the coast guard are charged with complicity in rum running.

His wife is slowly becoming blind, he stated, and he added he had no money with which to pay the expense of physicians. McIntyre denied he ever took money from rum runners or allowed the master of the Louis A. Conrad to board the Parry Boat 177 and distribute eight quarts of liquor among members of the crew.

Never, he said, did he allow speed boats to unload liquor from the schooner Freda Himmelman. He boarded a speed boat, he admitted, but said it was to examine the boat.

McIntyre said he never told 475 to any member of the crew after obtaining rum boats. Previously, he said, he lent money to members of the crew and he quoted one occasion when he gave a seaman $60 to enable him to get his teeth fixed.

Referring to testimony that liquor was brought to the patrol boat from the "Tim Alone," he said it was done in his absence, if at all. Four character witnesses testified in his behalf.

at her, circles one arm around her neck, strangling any scream, forces his knee into her back and then snatches her bag or pocketbook and is off before his victim has recovered from the choking.

LATEST VICTIM.

His latest victim is Rose Stengel of No. 81 Glendale avenue, Allston. Miss Stengel believed that she was safe in walking the streets in broad daylight with her mother at her side.

But nothing deterred "the strangler." He leaped at the girl, went through his usual method of cowing his victims, and seized her bag. So quickly and quietly did he work that Miss Stengel did not realize what was going on, until she turned to find her daughter choking under the strong grip of her assailant. Mrs. Stengel fainted.

The man dashed into the basement of an apartment house and was away before the girl could call a policeman or passer-by. This, according to his victims, is "the strangler's" regular method of escape.

Last Friday night Miss Stengel and her sister, Helen, were returning from their father's store with the day's receipts when a man approached. He looked so like the man who had previously attacked her that Miss Stengel turned in terror. The man chased the two girls until their screams caused him to seek flight, again through the basement of an apartment house.

Two women residents of Gardner street, Allston, were attacked and robbed in the same manner that has made "the strangler" infamous in the district.

The police admit that the list of victims is a large one and is growing daily.

ALSO A BURGLAR.

Burglary is also said to be in the thug's "bag of tricks," and his particular prey are women who conduct stores of various kinds in the neighborhood of Brighton avenue and Harvard avenue and who live nearby.

Mrs. Hedwig Kohler of No. 22 Gardiner street, her nine-year-old son, Kenneth, and her sister, Mrs. Meinhold, were set upon while returning home from the delicatessen store operated by Mrs. Kohler. They carried the day's receipts.

"I was ahead carrying the bag, my sister and son were behind," said Mrs. Kohler. "I saw the youth lurking on the sidewalk as we approached the house. Suddenly he circled around to get behind me and grasped me about the neck, aiming at the bag at the same time.

"Fright overcame me, so that I fought furiously without knowing what I was doing. He ran and I ran after him, shouting, 'He's got my money!' Then I fell and wrenched my leg. It was later, after being assisted into the house, that I realized I had saved the money by holding on to the bag which, in my great excitement, I thought he had taken.

"My husband told me that our dog was barking strangely for a long time before we arrived, and I think it was because a stranger was lurking in the vicinity."

Eric Nordstrom saw the stranger and gave a description to the police. Nordstrom said he wore a light cap with a long visor and a long overcoat. Mrs. Meinhold said he was about twenty-four or twenty-five years old and of medium height.

A youth answering this description seized a purse containing $20 from Mrs. Florence Bassett, who is employed in the lunchroom and candy shop of Miss Lottie Ibettson in Brighton avenue. Only a few days earlier, Miss Ibettson's apartment at No. 35 Gardiner street was ransacked and $125 stolen.

"He came in and asked for a drink of water," said Mrs. Bassett. "I showed him where to get it at the rear of the store. Suddenly I became suspicious and looked for my purse and it was gone. I shrieked for aid and he ran, dodging out of sight in an alley."

Modern Women Use Men's Cuss Words, Says Author

New York, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—Many women, in addition to imitating men intellectually, have adopted the profanity, vulgarity skepticism and cynicism of men, in the opinion of Dr. Will Durant, author of "The Story of Philosophy."

Mr. Durant, who gave his views in a lecture last night, blamed the introduction of factory machinery with giving jobs to women and tending to break down home life. He suggested the fundamental concern of women should be the bearing of children and the building of homes.

cell of Station 5 and several officers went to the place to hear the grocer's story and get descriptions of the daring trio.

Siegel was in his store looking over stock when the first thug entered quietly. He looked around and then made purchases which totalled $1.98. He tendered a $20 in payment. There was not enough in the cash register, so Siegel went to an envelope on his desk.

The envelope contained $500 he had borrowed from a bank Saturday and the receipts of several days' business. As he pulled the money out two more men walked into the store and the robbery was then staged.

This is the third time Siegel has been held up and robbed at his store. The first time holdup men took $60 and a watch. The second time they took $114 and Siegel was badly beaten. He was unable to give a good description of the thugs today.

LOTTA'S 'NIECE' ON THE STAND

Asked if she had another conversation about anything, she testified that her uncle had showed her some letters and a paper from the doctor.

"He read the letters to me and then he said, 'Now I can see how much Jack thinks of you when he writes letters like that to you.'"

The witness then identified letters and a paper. She said she always knew the Bullock brothers of Hannibal, Mo., as uncles. Ed Bullock was formerly a business partner of Jack Crabtree's.

"I was then about three or four years old," she said. "I remember McVey of Hannibal used to come to the place and play with me. My uncle used the ranch as a place to break horses.

Asked to describe the place and her uncle, she testified: "It was a great big place. Uncle Ed was tall and nice looking. He wore a mustache and had blue eyes. I thought he was very handsome."

"Did you have some conversation about clothing?" she was asked.

"Yes. All my clothes were marked Carlotta Crabtree. He said that was no longer my name, that he had bought and paid for the name of Bullock for me. He told me my father was John Crabtree and he had deserted me. He said he then adopted me.

Her first husbands died and she divorced the third, while he was a fugitive from justice, a "distinction" he still holds.

Chamberlain was worried and sleepless for some unexplained reason, according to his wife.

Police and volunteer searchers set out to cover every foot of ground in the lonesome section on the outskirts where Mrs. Chamberlain insists her husband's body lies hidden.

"They are going to murder me, they want my money," Chamberlain shouted in his sleep a few nights before he left home, according to Mrs. Chamberlain's story to Chief Russell. She said he awoke in fear after mumbling other broken sentences about enemies in this town.

Chamberlain came here from Halifax about ten years ago and married his present wife in October, 1925.

She has three children living with her. They are Margaret Slattery, twenty-one, and William Slattery, eighteen, her daughter and son by her first marriage, and Irene Jordan, sixteen, daughter by her second marriage. They live on the Vinton Farm in North Central street.

"I asked Chief Russell to work quietly because I didn't want any scandal," said Mrs. Chamberlain. "That was when my husband first disappeared and I felt sure he would return in a day or two."

Prairie Du Chien, Wis., Dec. 13 (I.N.S.).—Suspicion of complicity in the slaying of Clara Olson, 32, turned again today toward the household of Erdman Olson, 18, her sweetheart, not a relative, following what authorities believe was a damaging admission by Edwin Knutson, a farmhand.

Knutson, employed by Albert Olson, father of the missing youth, today declared from the sickbed where he was lying dangerously ill, it was hard to "stick to the truth if you know what Albert Olson knows."

'BLIND TIGER' IN SHADOW OF CITY HALL

An alleged "blind tiger" within the shadow of City Hall was exposed in Federal District court today with the arraignment of Allen Carroll, Franklin avenue, Allston, and Salvatore Bruno of Somerville, on the charge of illegal possession of liquor.

Their appearance before U. S. Commissioner E. C. Jenney followed a raid by Federal agents on rooms on the second floor of a Court street building, opposite the entrance to City Hall annex.

Both defendants pleaded not guilty and were released on their personal recognizances to furnish $500 each on Friday for further hearing.

Federal agents told the commissioner they had been watching the premises for some weeks, following scores of anonymous reports of the alleged illicit liquor traffic.

When the pace was rattled, according to the Federal authorities, it was crowded with men of all sizes, but as the system of alleged liquor sales involved the carrying of the stuff "on the hip," only a quart was seized.

Carroll, at the time of the raid, gave the name of Albert Leary, but at his arraignment today his correct name was admitted by his counsel, Joseph P. Walsh, following a wordy battle with the raiding officer.

DIVORCE GIVEN COMEDIENNE

Paris, Dec. 13 (A.P.)—A divorce decree on the grounds of desertion has been awarded in Paris courts to Ann Coleman Powers from Harry Carson Powers. Both gave varis addresses. They were married in Baltimore, Md., August 4 1924.

Baltimore, Dec. 13 (A.P.)—Mrs. Ann Colman Powers is Ann Murdock, comedienne. Her secret marriage to Powers, a stock broker, was revealed in New York about a year ago when she sued her husband for $150,000 bonds which she said were given her shortly before her marriage.

WOMAN SAVED BY PULMOTOR

From the shadow of death Mrs. Della Zaltzman, thirty-three, of Leiton street, Mattapan, was brought back to life by tireless efforts on the part of three Station 19 patrolmen. Overcome by gas while she was getting breakfast for her husband, the woman was apparently dead when the officers responded in the ambulance to her husband's appeal for help.

Using the Schaeffer method, Patrolmen Charles McPartland, George Steiner and Maurice C. Sheehy worked over Mrs. Zaltzman for almost an hour before they were rewarded by signs of life. Further work brought her back to conscious ness.

A doctor, whom the husband had called, arrived after the officers had accomplished their feat and took charge. He said she would recover. Zaltzman said he had gone to the kitchen and found his wife lying on the floor. Gas was pouring from an unlighted jet in the gas stove.

GIRL VANISHES FROM HOME OF EVANGELIST

Police today were notified of the mysterious disappearance of Josie Foley, sixteen-year-old member of the family of Mr. and Mrs. Agnew Demarest, traveling evangelists who have been conducting services at the Christian Missionary Alliance in Kenilworth street, Roxbury.

She was last seen when she left 64 Rockview street, Jamaica Plain, where the evangelists have been stopping during their stay in Boston.

The girl is of fair complexion, with dark brown hair cut in a boyish bob. She is said to be remarkably pretty. Her eyes are blue-gray, her teeth even and she is short in stature.

When she left the Rockview street house she was wearing a white blouse, turquoise-blue skirt, light blue and tan felt hat, green coat with fur collar and brown silk stockings.

The missing girl is unused to city ways, according to the Demarests, and it is feared that she may have fallen into evil hands.

When she left the Demarest home she had only her carfare to take her to the church as she expected to return home with her employers.

Mrs. Demarest, the girl's employer, is a granddaughter of Gen. William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army.

'ENOCH ARDEN' ASKED $20,000 HUSH MONEY

In an "Enoch Arden" case with not the poetic ending of Tennyson's tale, Mrs. Nadine Turin, war nurse, today told in Superior Court how her first husband, whom she supposed dead, "came back to life" and sought $20,000 hush money from the wealthy ocean captain she had married as her second husband.

Stormy scenes punctuated her life with Victor A. Turin, her first husband, according to the young nurse, who is seeking a divorce on grounds of desertion.

Chief Justice Hall learned that Nathan Ullian, an attorney now serving a jail term, was Turin's counsel and he deferred a decision until Ullian is brought from jail to represent his client in court.

"My first husband told me, 'I'm through with you forever. If I lived with you any longer, I'd kill you,' said Mrs. Turin. "Then he left me, saying he was going to become a soldier and fight for France.

"I had married him in Boston in 1917. I was a stranger girl in a strange land and I did not know which way to turn. Finally I went to New York city and became a nurse at St. Luke's Hospital and the Naval Hospital.

"While there I learned that Victor had been killed in action. Two years later I met Captain Wallace Schultz as a patient in the hospital, and believing I was a widow, I married him.

"We were married but a short time when Captain Schultz received a letter demanding $20,000. He asked me if I knew who the writer could be and I told him I recognized my first husband's signature.

"I immediately left the captain and have not seen him since. He obtained an annulment of our marriage in Wisconsin several months later."

She admitted that Turin had filed suit for divorce against her here in 1921 and named Captain Schultz in the complaint. She said she does not know where Turin is at present.

PROBE HUB GIRL GAS DEATH

Investigation into the death by gas poisoning in New York of Miss Marian Alpert, 21, a beauty of this city, was being conducted by Boston police today at the request of New York authorities.

Miss Alpert was found dead in her room. Authorities were not able to determine whether she took her own life or left gas jets open by accident.

The landlady said the girl had told her of quarreling with her parents.

HUGE DELRICHS RICHES TO SON

Newport, R. I. Dec. 13.—Mrs. Theresa Alice Oelrichs, one-time leader of the Four Hundred of New York and Newport, who died here after a long sickness, bequeathed her estate to her son, Hermann, according to her will, filed here today for probate.

The personal estate, it is said, will exceed $200,000, the value of the entire estate being several millions.

By the terms of the will, had the son died before his mother and without leaving any children, the vast estate of Mrs. Oelrichs would have gone to her sister, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., mother of Mrs. Frederic Cameron Church of Boston.

The will was executed July 21, 1924. During most of the time intervening between that date and her death, Mrs. Oelrichs was confined in a padded room at her Newport mansion, her mind virtually a blank.

Her son, Hermann Oelrichs, was married to Miss Dorothy Haydel of St. Louis. He is thirty-eight years old and lives in New York.

ALL-NIGHT VIGIL FOR BRIDE; MAN KIDNAPED

Chicago, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—William Presnell, ocultist, gave one explanation today of why he left his fiancee waiting at the church last night. He said he had been released by fear now, dosed and held prisoner for 27 hours.

Upon returning to his office today he found Miss Barbara Trucllo, whom he was to have married, with her after an all-night visit with the policemen. The preacher's mother-in-law later found the groom and the policemen left when it was announced the wedding ceremony probably would be performed late today or tomorrow.

On leaving his Trucllo home early Sunday the doctor said he had been thrown into an automobile and the next he knew he found himself in Evanston at 4 o'clock this morning.

No mention was made of his woman client, who is said to have told Miss Trucllo she would never marry Presnell. Five years ago in Kansas City, Mo., Presnell married a Miss Edna Jones and was divorced.

Last Friday the woman client stopped Miss Trucllo, who is 24 years old on the street. "You'll never marry Willem," Miss Trucllo quoted the woman as saying. "I love him and will have him."

Trucllo, a woman who said she was "Lucile Duncan" telephoned to the Trucllo home, "Barbara will never marry Dr. Presnell this week, and the wedding is off."

Police found a light burning in the doctor's office last night, but when they broke in they found no one.

When this morning in walked the doctor.

U.S. STANDS PAT ON REPARATION

Washington, Dec. 13 (I.N.S.).—The United States has a definite agreement not to release Germany from any of its reparations obligations, Secretary of State Kellogg told the Senate today in reply to a resolution by Senator King (D.) of Utah.

Kellogg sent to the Senate full correspondence regarding reparations, including the notes with Great Britain wherein the United States insisted upon its rights to participate in German reparations payments.

The report also contained the full text of the Dawes plan and the Paris agreement were included.

Christmas is coming—but don't let that worry you. The Shop-o-scope is here to help you make it a merry one!

Facing Operation, She Pleads for Family

"What a sad Christmas my nine children and I will have if you don't help us," writes a Roxbury woman who has just buried her baby in Holy Cross Cemetery and who is now waiting to go to a hospital for a major operation. This overburdened mother has written to the Christmas Goodfellow Editor of the Boston Evening American appealing for assistance.

"I should have gone to a hospital before to undergo an operation," she writes, "but I was waiting for my baby to get better, but God took him away from me to be in Heaven at Christmas. What an unhappy Christmas I will have! When I returned from the cemetery, after my baby's funeral, there was no fire except a few sticks of wood and some cinders my children picked up from dumps. Please help us with a little fire if you can, for we are destitute, and please give us something to eat Christmas Day, for we are hungry and cold."

Maybe YOU have a few minor troubles; what do you think of these REAL ones of this Roxbury mother? Don't you think she deserves a lift? Then obey that impulse now and get in touch with the Christmas Goodfellow Editor to obtain her name and address. They will gladly be given to you in order that you may extend a helping hand.

LOTS ASK FOR CLOTHES.

Were you ever really cold in your life? If so, perhaps you can understand the situation in the home of Everyoold Rita of South Boston who writes: "My little 5-year-old sister and 6-year-old brother and I need clothes very much. My mama has to work as my father won't. My father doesn't treat mama good, so he won't work and we have to stay in the Day Nursery while mother is at work. Any old thing you can give us will do, as my mama could make it over.

"We just had our stove taken away as mama could not pay on it and it is very cold and we haven't many warm bed clothes. We need shoes very much. Anything would do to make over. We have no warm clothes at all. Please don't forget us as we didn't have any Thanksgiving at all."

Would you like to help Rita Christmas Goodfellows? If so, just say the word!

Twelve-year-old Josephine of North street has an interesting touch in her letter and here is what she writes—

"We are very poor and I am calling for your help at Christmas. I need you very badly. I am a girl of 12 and go to school. I could go to high school, but we are very poor, so I am going to quit when I am 14 years old. That's all I've got to say about school.

"What we need most at Christmas is food. If you don't believe me you can come up to my house and see what a swell place we live in. We have no father and there are 11 in the family, and a good big family, and all good and healthy and nothing to eat, so please send us plenty of food."

HUNDREDS AT BENEFIT.

Hundreds of needy persons will be fed and clothed at Christmas as a result of the wonderful concert and vaudeville show conducted in behalf of the Goodfellow Fund at the Shubert Theatre last evening under the personal direction of Hearst A. Sprague. The show was a success from every viewpoint, many of the stars from attractions now playing in Boston as well as more than a score of the best acts in the concert and vaudeville fields participating toward that end. All gave their services free of charge. Messrs. Shubert contributed the use of the theatre without cost.

Automobiles to convey performers to and from other engagements were contributed by C. P. Rockwell, Inc., New England distributors for Stutz motor cars, C. S. Henshaw, New England distributors for Dodge cars and R. A. Green, general manager of the Paige Jewett Company. The cars which were used included a Dodge Brothers De Luxe sedan which has a long wheel base, distinctive upholstered body, and is of all steel construction, a model 6-75 Paige seven passenger sedan, beautifully fashioned and perfectly appointed, and a Nash sedan, with its wonderful four-wheel brakes which are so thoroughly protected that water mud or slush cannot freeze them.

CHARITY BALL.

Hundreds of tickets have already been sold for the charity ball in new Elks Hotel ballroom, opposite Metropolitan Theatre next Wednesday evening in aid of the fund. This big affair will be conducted under the auspices of Gertrude Dolan-De Pietro Studios of Dancing, Roxbury and Marion Crandall Maltby Dancing Studio, Winthrop. Two hundred and fifty talented children of these popular dancing studios will participate this unusually interesting entertainment from 8 to 10 p. m. In formal dress will prevail as it is the desire of the Christmas Goodfellow Editor to have all who can, attend.

Through courtesy of the management of Metropolitan Theatre, Del Castillo, the talented organist, whose playing there is one of the treats of each week's program, will entertain at the charity ball. He will play classical and popular selections of wide appeal on the $50,000 Wurlitzer organ that is one of the outstanding features of this strikingly beautiful ballroom.

FALL-DOHENY VERDICT PLEA REJECTED

Washington, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—The day that will say whether Albert B. Fall and Edward L. Doheny are guilty of conspiracy to defraud the United States Government in the naval oil lease negotiations listened to closing arguments of attorneys today with prospects that it would be able to retire to consider a verdict tomorrow or Wednesday.

Before the twelve men who will be the question whether the Mexican oil baron to Fall during the time arrangements for the lease of the Elk Hills, Cal., reserve were in progress, was in fact a loan to the Secretary of the Interior, as claimed by the defense, or whether it was a part of a gigantic conspiracy wrongfully to acquire the property, as charged by the government.

SHOOTS SELF IN CAPITOL

Washington, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—Early sightseers at the Capitol today heard a note of tragedy that momentarily overshadowed the magnificence of the government, when John W. Caldwell of Berkeley, Col., a Civil War veteran, shot and probably fatally wounded himself at the top of a stairway just off the rotunda.

The name "J. W. Caldwell" was found written on the lining of his hat.

GIRL PROTESTS ON RECKLESS FENWAY RIDERS

Thrown from her horse in the Fenway when five riders stampeded an impromptu Kentucky Derby, Betty G. Denham, No. 3726 Commonwealth avenue, today asks a curb on reckless autumn and Sundays.

"Many of these people," writes Miss Denham, "I regret to say, are in military uniforms. Above the injustice ignore the signs asking the roadway. They frequently do not slow down and they blow their horns in a manner which frightens any horse.

"A few days ago I was cantering along the bridle path when suddenly five riders dashed around a curve riding abreast. It appeared although two of them had just passed the others. They were using the entire width of the bridle path.

"It happened so quickly I could hardly check my horse in time, but in making the effort to do so he became badly frightened, reared and threw me over his head. I escaped the hard macadam of the roadway by inches.

"Had I struck this, I might have been killed or very seriously injured. Fortunately, I escaped with minor injuries. There is some excuse for motorists who are not familiar with the general disposition of horses, but there is none for riders, who should know the sensitiveness of the animals.

OPEN SOUTH END WAR ON HIP-POCKET BOOTLEGGERS

Greets Century

CATHERINE POWELL
Roxbury widow who will be the guest of honor at a reception in honor of her 100th birthday. She will be 100 years old on Dec. 24.

Declaring she never drank liquor and favored the doctrine of moral suasion as laid down by the Rt. Rev. Reginald Maurice, the Irish Apostle of temperance, Mrs. Catherine Powell, widow of Michael Powell, will observe her 100th birthday December 24, at her home, No. 32 Carlov street, Roxbury.

Neighbors will tender a reception and present her with a birthday cake containing 100 candles.

Born in Galway, Ireland, in 1826, Mrs. Powell left there when she was thirty years old and landed in East Boston with other emigrants from the Emerald Isle. She says the country was inflamed three years later by the assassination of President Abraham Lincoln.

Some years afterward she was married and settled in Roxbury, where she has since lived. The marriage ceremony was performed in the Holy Cross Cathedral, Washington street, South End, also recalls that old St. Patrick's Church, Northampton street, a frame structure, was guarded nightly from incendiarism at the hands of leaders of the so-called Know Knothing movement.

Blessed with good health and perfect faculties, Mrs. Powell says the girls in her day were different from the flapper type of today.

TELLS WHY U. S. FAILS IN SHIP OPERATION

Washington, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—Secretary in administration of the Shipping Board corporation, due to frequent changes in chairmanship, in operation private interests are unable merchant lines at a profit with the government operated at a loss, Wm. Cummings Plummer of the Shipping Board testified today before a subcommittee of the senate.

He cited recent removal of Charles Edward Ljungstedt as chairman of the board, and Admiral Benson, as evidence of the "instability" in the membership of a board for Congress.

A "COOLIDGE VICTORY."

The inquiry was on authority of a senate resolution asking information on the reasons for the recent removal of Admiral Benson and director of the Lexington and sister ships.

Plummer said when the senate met tomorrow he felt the consideration of the matter would be postponed and Congress given full information before action was taken.

Senator Frazier, Republican, North Dakota, chairman of the committee, told Plummer the surgeon who hearing was to insure that no action be taken until Congress had such an opportunity.

Senator Johnson asked the witness if the board contemplated the sale of the ships, and Mr. Plummer replied that the apparent attempts to sell them were "failures."

He did not believe a buyer for the Lexington could be gotten, because no man can afford to buy and run it."

7 NEAR-DEAD SAILORS SAVED OFF SINKING SCHOONER

Captain Fred A. Beckman and his crew took to the rigging and flew distress signals, but no vessel was sighted.

When sighted by the Mariner the schooner was ready to go under. She was breaking up and her crew of seven men were clustered out on the after cabin house only partly out of the sea. They were at work trying to get a raft into the Mariner's boat and then just in the nick of time.

What ensued with a gale blowing, warm morning and the first food they had to date, the sailors told a story of suffering and endurance unequaled any in the North Atlantic for years.

KEEP PUMPS GOING.

"We were caught Sunday," said Captain Beckman today. "We were bound from Bear River, Nova Scotia, to Vineyard Haven for orders. I don't know exactly where we were, but I know it was a long distance from the Georgia Bound where Captain Connors of the Mariner picked us up.

"The wind was strong and the seas pounded us. I had no fear until I realized she had sprung her seams.

"We kept the pumps going, and they were powerless. I managed to order the men off the deck. I was afraid we would all be swept overboard. We took some food from the galley and stored it on the deck housing. We managed to save a little fire water, but the food was soaked and unfit to eat.

"The water was just enough for us to have a sip to moisten our lips once a day.

COULDN'T HANG ON.

"We kept our distress signals flying all day Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. We didn't sight a sail. At night we had a fierce gale, but it looked pretty hopeless. By Wednesday we were pretty well all in. We had been soaking wet and cold since Monday. We had no food and no water and it just about looked like the end of the rope for us.

"The men were exhausted and they could hardly keep on deck. We couldn't stay in the rigging because we could not hang on. We cuddled together in the cabin trying to keep a little bit warm and just waiting.

"I could tell by the crushing blow that the cargo was shifting and I knew it wouldn't be long before she would break up under us. There was nothing we could do. The seas were still running high, and while it might have been possible if she had broken up to have tried for a wreck or some of the wreckage, with those men of us could have lasted long.

"I know my hands were so numb that we were useless and my feet were all swollen.

"Well, we lighted the flare again Wednesday night. By that time we had to keep lifting each other to stay awake.

"I was afraid if one of us dozed off that one would go by the board, and the hopeless to those men was overpowering. I know it was the temptation of self and I know that the men kept trying to cheer each other by telling stories which I guess none of us remembered.

"The next thing I remember it was daylight and there was the Mariner laying to windward.

"I don't know how long she had been there, but the sight of her gave us new hope, although I knew they would have difficulty in taking us off. The seas were running higher than ever and we were too weak to battle a line even if she floated one down to us.

"I think they launched their dory. We lay lay on that cabin only able to raise our heads. I watched that dory climb every stroke the sailors took and every minute we were afraid she would be swamped.

"As she would disappear behind a wave only inside would be in our hearing until we would see her on the crest of the next wave. Then she disappeared altogether.

"We didn't have much strength left, but somebody yelled 'We're off.'

"Even then, though the dory was in danger as we vessel heaved and tossed and broke up like an egg box. But, thank God, they got us off.

"When I was finally taken to the Mariner I hardly had sense enough to thank Captain Connors. Somehow my mind was not working and I guess my men were about the same. We were lucky all right."

The rescued men with Captain Beckman are Mate Joseph Flander, Carol Mosher, Alex Cameron, Russia Colleon, Mark Colleon and George Craft. When brought here by the Mariner today they all showed stern of their terrible four days of exposure, thirst and hunger.

HEROIC CAPTAIN SHY.

Captain Cyril Connors of the Mariner modestly refused to be quoted, and a boss, yet his work of rescue was daring in a heavy sea with his own vessel in danger every minute. When signaled the flare Thursday about 4 a. m., he said, "It was about ten miles away. We headed for it and stood by about an hour and a half later. The sea was high and I could see those fellows lying on the cabin house as though they were just about all in.

"I couldn't launch a dory then. She would have been swamped.

"I went around to windward of the Cameron and lost about two encouragement through the megaphone. The stranded sailors just kept lying on the cabin. Finally just before noon I decided to take a chance.

"We got the dory off and brought the men aboard. We gave them hot drinks and put them into the men's bunks.

"That's all we did. Our position at that time was near the east end of the Georgia banks. We did only what any sailor would do."

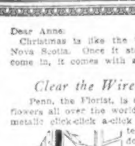
Dear Anne:

Christmas is like the tide in Nova Scotia. Once it starts to come in, it comes with a rush.

Clear the Wires!

Penn, the Florist, is sending flowers all over the world. The metallic click-click a-click of the telegraph means a dozen roses delivered within a few hours with its card of greeting to a mother in California. A basket of chrysanthemums for the golden wedding anniversary. It may be a wee basket of sweetheart roses and sweet peas for a little girl-friend, child who has come to the daughter so far away, or a bright begonia plant for the friend who is sick.



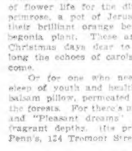
Within the same day your tribute is delivered, and its cost is little compared to the happiness of the one who sends. In fact, it takes only $7 to deliver one dozen roses in California. Surely, this is a service we are glad to record in the heart of the anniversary season.

And, man-or-woman who hesitates over what to give to those at home, fill up the window boxes. Send home a glowing bit of flower life for the dining room table; a primrose, a pot of Jerusalem cherries with their brilliant berries, or a pot of begonia plant. These are what make our Christmas days dear to memory and prolong the echoes of carols through weeks to come.

Or for one who needs the sweet deep sleep of youth and health, a silken covered balsam pillow, permeated with the fragrant depths of the forest. For there's many a "good night" and "Pleasant dreams" hidden within its fragrant depths. Its price is but $2.00 at Penn's, 124 Tremont Street.

Barbara's Making Up

To Santa Claus. She says she's going to be as good as gold and whisper her wishes to every Santa she sees in Boston. Because she wants a pair of the newest Holeproof stockings most awfully. And since they are $3, and Santa she sees in Boston. Because she wants a pair of the newest Holeproof stockings most awfully. And since they are $3, and Santa she always gives them to her will be a perfect saint.



She found them at Talbot's, Boylston Street, 335 Washington Street. All silk cashmere, from the tip of its little Ex-Toe to the top of the hem, which is pretty, lisle stocking silk, too. The most exquisite products ever devised for lovely women. It's a stocking to wear when you dance your way into happiness, for the debutante at her presentation, the girl at her first prom, and for the bride. A pretty, lisle hose which shade is the more beautiful, Grain, Celeste, Maxine, Fanchon or Renard.

But Barbara never forgets her old favorite, the $1.95 quality, in which chiffon and service weight. Especially those with silk tops lined with lisle, for she's most particular about her knees, and she gets her that smooth, lustrous finish all the way and yet are firmly reinforced beneath.

Don't you love the colorful counter, with its innumerable lengths of delicate hosiery so artistically displayed? Perhaps it's because we know the long wear, the satisfaction, the trustworthy service and the silken strand, and are practical enough to appreciate its moderate price, too.

This Christmas Is

Unique. It's the first year I haven't had to set all the gifts for the men folks to give. John has heard about Miss Wesoman, director of the personal Service department at Filene's, and he's taken his shopping problems to her.

Do you know much about her, Anne—I mean enough to really make use of her? Certainly! The extent of their service was a revelation to me. I didn't realize there was a large force of trained experts to conduct customers through the store, to help them in their shopping, the best gifts for them, if desired, to lend a hand to the busy mother, assemble merchandise for the husband woman who has only a few minutes to spare, or to furnish interpreters for the foreign speaking peoples. In fact, to give everything possible in the way of advice, information on line, color and style, from fitting out a small child, to buying a trousseau.

And what an asset to the poor bewildered man, with his wife, aunts, sisters, nieces, nephews, office help and the janitor's children to buy gifts for. Miss Wesoman will accompany him around the store personally, or send one of her assistants; or she will select his gifts and have them ready for his approval.

And best of all, you can have your packages marked, wrapped in charming papers, adorned with seals, tied artistically with ribbon, in fact, entirely prepared for mailing or for presentation, in her department. The only cost being the price of the materials used.

Why Not Go

Down to Thorpe & Martin's at 46 Franklin Street for your writing paper? It's always a good policy to go to a paper house for anything in stationery, especially at Christmas time, for they get the best values, the newest paper and the best quality weeks in advance, and by buying in such large quantities they can give you the advantage of the most moderate prices.

Now you can get your sport paper there for $1.00 a box; a big flat gift box, full of either the plain or deckle edge paper in any of the different colors, with the envelopes most beautifully lined. And actually find those Eversharp pencil and pen sets there too. In sizes for both men and women, at $5 a set. This includes the pen, pencil and the pretty gift box. You'll find desk sets, feather pens, all the leather bound lists and note books from the tiny shopping list to the big "My Trip Abroad," from the miniature expense books to the big ledgers.

Over at Talbot's

Bread and cake go hand in hand. Or rather it's where you get the things that are essential to both. In the type which makes them a pleasure for him.

Now, he must have a belt, but a Hickok belt with a Hickok buckle of hammered German silver—id his initial engraved I., one corner—that's something different. That brings him to the high class leather goods department, dieit and buckle in the gift box goes ($2.95.)

If his gloves are like Andrew Jacobs, he has a thrill of pride every time he slips them on, although they are only $2.95—a Talbot Christmas special. A pair of Turner cuff links, or a marvelous heavy crepe scarf with a distinctive design upon it in white and black, gray and blue, light tan and brown ($2.95) these are the things a man likes. For they show good taste, and in his own way, a man is more sensitive to good taste than a woman.

Another thing is an umbrella. Now he will never think to buy one for himself, but he certainly does appreciate the woman who will make him enough to get it for him. Especially one of those fine Talbot Paragon Cloths built for $3.95 there near the doorway.

Perhaps you'd like a brief case of genuine cowhide ($4.45), a pocket book (he always guess at silk), or one of those fine shirts they are featuring right now.

Uh-m-m! Leather!

Real genuine leather. London Harness Company leather. Theres absolutely nothing like it when it comes to luggage. You can't beat the real thing. Annex; not for the suitcase and bag you choose for your constant traveling companion. For this luggage you choose from the label of taste, discriminating judgment and intelligent personality upon you. It's as fine quality and workmanship as you can find in the country at the price.

And the prices are surprisingly moderate for the real thing. We looked them over yesterday, Barbara, Patsy and I, down there at 69 Franklin Street. And found the unfitted cases of genuine long grain cow hide were $15.95. That's low enough, isn't it? And some 13 inches, 20 inches, 22 inches and 24 inches long; beautifully lined, with fine brass locks and strong leather straps. We found them in the big cases, almost small trunk size, were $24.03.

The fitted case we liked best had rounded corners; a beautiful piece of construction and material, with the inner tray fitted with ten pieces in blue and amber, or white and gold, if you prefer. This was $29.95, which I consider "some Bargain."

And the most charming little overnight cases of the liard grain cowhide, in blue, green or brown, fitted with exquisite pieces, are only $22.50.

Happy Is the Home

Which will be guarded by the Little Flower and watched over by the lovely saint herself from her place of honor upon the wall. The statues I found of her are most beautiful.

Imported from France and finished in soft ivory colors, or polished in delicate tones. They are at the Ave Maria Shop, on the fourth floor of the Little Building (80 Boylston Street), and cost from $10 to $6.00.

Little Flower rings in yellow gold, white gold or sterling silver may be bought for $1.00 to $3.75. Creamy-colored candles with her picture upon them are 50c apiece, and her roses, her own beloved roses, with a medallion of her head hidden down in their hearts are $1.25 for the miniature sprays and 50c for the double. But please remember the 10c mailing charge when you write in your order.

If Ever

You get out of anything, or need something in a hurry, do as most everybody in the Little Building does, and run up to the Handy Shop on the sixth floor, room 619.

It is in the handiest little shop in that part of town; resplendent now with cards and gifts—imported cards from England and France, radiant with the traditions of Christmas, from the old country.

And gifts which have been most tastefully chosen. I saw beads there made from flower petals rolled in glass, the exquisite glass ware from the Spicer Studios; bud vases, candle sticks and jars in amber, blue and amethyst coloring. Leather goods, little sachets like wee baskets of ribbon ($1.00 and up), the hand painted Carolcraft ware and imported stationery of unusual distinction. In fact it's a real discovery, that little Handy Shop at 89 Boylston Street.

I've Found a Jewel

A black diamond of a jewel; about the best value in hosiery ever offered. Black silk stockings, of a wonderful heavy silk for $1.19 a pair. Stockings with silk tops, the "Pointex" slenderizing heel—a standard brand of the $3.00 class. It's a number that's closing out, and the Norfolk Hosiery Company on the street floor made one of the Little Building (85 Boylston Street), bought up four hundred pairs, and are making this remarkable price to all of us who have learned to appreciate this little shop.

And here's one more offer to take your breath away. They have some all-wool hose for 89c a pair, two pair for $1.59. So now you have three good reasons for turning up bright and early at that nice little hosiery shop.

"Please, May I

Have a permanent wave for Christmas?" How many girls are asking that, do you suppose? I know of dozens right around here, and many of them are going to the Emile Shop, that lovely new shop on the main floor of the Blake Building.

59 Temple Place. And really, a curly head of hair, waved in smooth soft lines shaped in delicate curves about the face is one of the most popular gifts of the year. For it gives a charm and beauty which lasts for nearly six months, and this is dear to the heart of any woman.

Dorothy and Emilie Brady know how to do it to perfection. They learned the art years ago, and have acquired a skill of touch and technique which amounts to genius. They were the first in Boston to give the graceful finger wave.

And now Miss Jeanette has come to join the staff. She is already a favorite among well groomed girls, and an artist with the marcel iron. And they do say that after a soothing shampoo of pure Castile soap, with careful and painstaking drying, followed by a marcel with Miss Jeanette, a girl sleeps out of the Emile shop as a dozen times pretty and bewitching as is possible for a twentieth century mortal to be.

If clipped and bobbed by Mr. Hartell, in the new swirl mode, which suits hair molded and shaped to her personality, yet follows the general line of the predominating style. In fact, it's a splendid little shop to know about.

Patsy Declares

That George L. Griffin & Son, Inc. 670 Washington Street, is the big fur coat shop in the city, and that one of the better quality are their main line. She knows it's so for all her friends have bought their big, beautiful coats there for years.

But John vows his chiefly a man's haberdashery, where the gentleman of taste selects his gloves, neckties, plain socks, sport socks and garters. Then he clinches the argument by stating that it's the headquarters of the Stetson hats.

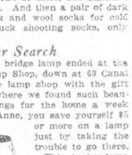
They are both right, Anne. It is one of the really reliable and trustworthy places to buy a fur coat at a fair price. And there is a line and quality about them that you don't get anywhere else.

But the same sense of style runs through the street floor, as I found when I went in to select the finest lined driving gloves. And those gloves, by the way, were only $3.00. Fine leather gloves with a wool interlining which was almost as cozy as the glove itself. "Take a plunge and bought him a Stetson hat. And something tells me he is going to be one pleased man on Christmas morning.

You know Christmas is the time to fix a man up on all those things he never takes time to tend to himself. I found some splendid ties for $1.00, plain and colored, but dignified and self respecting. And then a pair of dark heather brown silk and wool socks for cold weather. Real duck shooting socks, only 75c a pair.

Our Search

For Patsy's junior bridge lamp ended at the A. J. Berman Lamp Shop, down at 63 Canal Street. They like the lamp shop with the gift studio combined, where we found such beautiful and rare things for the home a week or so ago. And, Anne, you save yourself $5 or more on a lamp just by taking the trouble to go there.



This junior lamp for Patsy has a polychrome shaft standing on a metal base, and a beautiful pleated georgette shade 22 inches large, with a stretched silk lining in almost every combination of the lamp shades, the rose, taupe or tangerine. It has long silken cords. In fact, it is a complete and lovely lamp for $13.95.

Then there's another lamp that illustrates what I mean by getting a truly fine thing at a saving. This is a 24-inch lamp with a black Chinese mirror panel, which stands in an old gold base and has an oval hand-decorated shade of beaded parchment—a lovely lamp for $12.95 complete. A smoker's outfit costs but $16.95, and yet it has an iron wrought table finished in green or the antique gold, with a marble top and base, and a four-piece smoking set of gun metal brass. We saw an aquarium of wrought iron with a big 2-gallon bowl for $8.95. And up in the studio at 69 Canal street we found a whole suite full of imported art ware from every country in the world from $1.00 up.

Shall She Bob?

Of course, she wants to. Every girl wants to since the new swirl bob came in. But everyone can't. Not if L. Max says "No." If it suits her contour and type. Not if his wise, gray head will permit her to enter the charmed circle of "those for whom it's right." And his expert barber will give her the bob of her dreams, with his famous permanent wave, that wide, soft, glossy permanent which remains graceful and well groomed for months to come.

But, I warn you, he may say "No." If your hair is of the texture which may be harmed, even by his new and gentle process, you cannot have a permanent. You can be shampooed, marcelled, have a facial, or treatment for your hair. But you cannot have the L. Max bob or permanent, unless it is to your advantage.

For appointment call Beach 8691, or drop in at 154 Boylston Street, on the third floor, and ask him personally about it.

"I've Laid Aside

Most everything to wish you a Merry Christmas." That's what this wee blonde baby (sketched herewith) was saying, when I found her at the Unity Landing Library Shop, in the Unity Building, at 185 Devonshire Street.

And, Anne, the moment you enter that shop, you've laid aside about one-third of your Christmas problems. Not the big, expensive gifts which buy themselves, but the small, special gifts of personality. Gifts with a laugh in them, like the box with the two pieces of soap shaped int big dice, for the one who is particular about crops while he bathes. "Gamble while you scrub, with a laugh for every rub." These are 50c a box, by the way, of pure French imported soap.

Then there are the gifts of fragrance, the incense sets—a dozen woodsy odors to burn in a bronze lily dish with a friendly frog standing by, for 50c. The dainty packages of bath salts, imported perfumes, and innumerable fascinating novelties. In fact, it's an ideal shop to find the gifts for the girls you work or play with.

And for Christmas cards. Oh, those Christmas cards. Truly humorous, truly tender, artistic and unusual. Surprisingly inexpensive, too, especially in the sets. Why, you can have fifteen charmingly engraved cards marked with your own name in raised printing for $1.00, with envelopes to match and only three days to wait.

Scarves Are Blooming

Everywhere. Never have they been so abundant or so popular as they are this year. They flutter from every corner, calling you to come, see, and buy; because they are so lovely.

But don't buy until you have seen those at Thresher Brothers Silk Store, 12 Temple Place. For their scarves are so unusual, so beautiful and unique, it would be a shame to pass them by. They are scarves with a meaning. Great lengths of hand-blocked colors, every pattern with a story of its own.

Tales of the Indians, motifs from the Renaissance, designs from ancient China—all the beauty of the world depicted in exquisitely woven strands of silk. These are $6.50, although some of Thresher's own silks are as low as $2.00.

Then there are the shawls of chiffon or crepe. Great squares of glistening color, with sweeping fringe 18 inches long, for $10. In patterns that you'll love, of gray, with orchid, rose, blush, and the purest of blues.

And even if scarves and shawls are not on your list, you should visit Thresher's, for there's a special sale going on every silk imaginable. A general price of $1.55 a yard on moire georgettes, satin charmeuse, ombre georgettes, satin duchesse, plain and striped crepe soire, and the washable crepes.

Then there are the undies, the splendid hosiery values, and oh—a host of other reasons for dropping into Thresher's within the next few days.

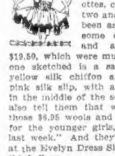
There's a Dim

Corner on the side of your fireplace, Anne. It needs a lamp; a lamp with a delicate shaft and a soft-toned shade, upon which your eyes rest contentedly, while you muse, and while you read. A lamp whose mellow light lures you to read. As meditat the day's happenings, and consolate one by one the artistic details of the room, and finally to relax completely with the gift and slip off into the drifting clouds of sleep. Such a lamp as we saw at the Spaulding Moss Company, down there at 42 Franklin Street. It was 24 inches tall, with iron wrought base and shaft in bronze, brass or black finish, most gracefully made, its paper parchment shade was hand painted, with a home-coming ship upon the seas, a spray of flowers, any of the many designs from which to choose. And it's only $15 complete; lamp, shade, 2-pull chain, socket, cord and plug. The outstanding value of the week.

I know just how you'll do it when you go there. First you will pick your lamp, then you'll wander from counter to counter, collecting some exquisite Christmas cards so attractively displayed in their glassed-in envelopes, pausing with appreciation before the drawing instruments, the painting sets, probably sending a $3 Dietzgen outfit to some boy who craves expression in lines and curves, with pencil and paper. Then you'll adopt two amber glass candlesticks at $1.00 a pair, claim possession of tall tapering candles, and come away with the firm conviction that after all it pays to go to an artists' shop around Christmas time.

"Please, Evelyn," I Said,

"Give me an especially nice item to end off my Monday letter, one item which will be of definite benefit to the mothers and girls who want pretty clothes right now at Christmas time, but must count the cost." And Evelyn said, "Well, you tell your friends that I have in some lovely new dresses at $12.95; those georgettes, crepes, and satins in the two and three tones they have been asking for. That I have some exquisite party frocks and afternoon dresses for $19.50, which were much, much higher. The one sketched is a sample, a most luscious yellow silk chiffon and net velvet over a pink silk slip, with a big golden rose right in the middle of the soft velvet girdle. Then also tell them that we have some more of those $6.95 wools and silks in "tubs" also for the younger girls, that were so popular last week." And they're all up there, Anne, at the Evelyn Dress Shop, 34 3 Winter Street, third floor.



Faithfully yours,

Priscilla

WARRANT FOR ORMISTON SENT BY AIR

Los Angeles, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—District Attorney Asa Keyes, in Philadelphia on private business, is taking steps to extradite from Chicago Kenneth G. Ormiston, "airline" confederate in the Aimee McPherson conspiracy case, but Ormiston's value as a witness either for or against the woman evangelist is in dispute here.

A certified copy of the warrant and complaint on file here against Ormiston charging conspiracy to defeat justice and subornation of perjury, was forwarded by air mail to Chicago and should reach the police of that city today.

Deputy District Attorney E. J. Dennigan and W. I. Gilbert, chief counsel for Mrs. McPherson, argued the matter. The deputy prosecutor suggesting that the presence of Ormiston at the evangelist's forthcoming trial is "imperative to the defense."

To which Mr. Gilbert replied that he had "no more use for Ormiston than a wooden leg."

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Musically Inclined of Boston Smart Set Plan Big Welcome to Miss Leslie Frick

Princess Cantacuzene Entertaining Girlhood Friend in Chicago

THOSE BOSTONIANS strongly addicted to the musicale-going habit will give warm welcome to Miss Leslie Frick, I haven't a doubt. An interesting little folder comes to me, announcing her forthcoming descent upon musical Boston after metropolitan concert triumphs. The folder pictures her a charming young woman, pearls looped about her slender throat and an Oriental splendor of silken shawl about her shoulders, who should make the most dazzling of stage appearances.

I ALSO GLEAN from the folder that her voice is a mezzo soprano, trained by maestros of imposing fame. And that in addition to beauty and a lovely voice she has a romantic family background of Southern aristocracy allied with foreign nobility. Mr. and Mrs. John Witherspoon Frick are her parents and the Duchess de Richelieu is her aunt. All of which, of course, lends glamour to the prospect.

MISS FRICK SHARES concert honors and the romantic atmosphere with one Arcadie Birkenholz, violinist. He has the brand of good looks to thrill a debutante and is descended from a long line of musicians in Austria, who played at court during two hundred years or more when Imperial Austria maintained the most gorgeous court in Central Europe.

A FEW OF Miss Frick's very important New York sponsors were Mesdames Charles de Rham, Edgar Auchincloss, James Cummings Barr, Girard Foster and Charles Dana Gibson. Boston's booking will be equally of the high and mighty, for Boston's elect adores good music and is not at all averse to seeing its name in a very choice sponsor-list.

THE PRINCESS CANTACUZENE, Boston's very own Princess, who was formerly the popular Clarissa Curtis, has been entertaining in her Chicago home a girlhood best friend in the person of Miss Lena Turnbull, daughter of the Charles Turnbull of Marlborough street. The Princess and Miss Turnbull were duly admired in the enormous throng of Windy City fashionables, who danced in the Blackstones famous crystal ballroom in honor of Miss Glen Louise Viles.

THE VILES presentation affair was a splendid occasion, a super star blazing in Chicago skies. Miss Turnbull wore a handsome creation of black and white and the Princess was in apricot chiffon and pearls. They have been chums since before the days when Prince Michael Cantacuzene came a-wooing the pretty daughter of the "Tom" Curtises, to carry her away to a Chicago home. However, she sallies eastward every Summer to be at Nahant with her parents.

A PALL OF SNOW in nowise daunts the feminine riders of the Norfolk Hunt set. A blanket of snow over their favorite hunting country merely sends them down on Cape Cod to follow their favorite sport where Nature's Winter touch is less severe than Berkshire's. Mrs. Lawrence Hemenway has a lodge at Eastham, and the Norfolk women use it as their headquarters.

SOME OF THEIR MOUNTS are quartered there, and there, for a day or so of hunting, just as fancy dictates may be found such enthusiasts as Miss Amy Peabody, Miss Hilda Foster, Miss Mary Hunnewell and others of the Norfolk set. The men of the hunt prefer to make their headquarters at Chatham, hurling from their over hill and dale runs so long as the weather permits.

PRINCESS MARY HOPES NEXT ONE'LL BE A GIRL

London, Dec. 13 (I.N.S.).—Princess Mary is rebuking her social engagements. After Christmas until Spring it is understood she will avoid all engagements possible.

Princess Mary is already the mother of two sons and it is understood a daughter would be warmly welcomed in the Lascelles household and in Buckingham Palace.

FORD'S BRITISH PLANT ADOPTS FIVE-DAY WEEK

London, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—The Evening News says Henry Ford has introduced the five-day week into the Ford Motor Works at Manchester.

Stores are using tokens, it adds, to insure that the "clothing workers" will be enabled under the new condition to earn as much as he did in five and a half days.

Christmas comes but once a year

So give for remembrance till it comes again

Christmas is the joyous day of remembrance. Its spirit should last the year. Therefore it is in keeping with the significance of Christmas to give gifts which shall give pleasure in the days to come as well as upon the holiday itself.

For the bride, the young matron, or homemaker of many years, what can be more pleasing than a gift for her home? China, glass, silver, antiques, lamps, clocks, mirrors—all are attractive, all are useful.

For the young girl the new watches are fascinating. The locket watches or the tiny enameled balls are different and therefore alluring. Watches for the man, too, are always good. The young man appreciates his first watch; the older man likes a strap watch for outdoor wear, or a thin pocket watch, to replace the heavy timepiece that probably commemorated his coming of age.

Jewelry is less conventional this year. Shoulder pins are unusual in shape, bracelets striking in design, rings distinctive in mounting, necklaces unusually becoming. Every woman should have at least one new piece of jewelry each year. At our diamond or jewelry counter you will find just the piece to give.

U.S. FLIER TO AID JUNIOR LEAGUE HEALTH FUND

Lieutenant Reginald Thomas of the U. S. Navy Air Base at Squantum will fly over Boston on Wednesday dropping hundreds of leaflets advertising the entertainment to be conducted by the Junior League to raise funds for the Community Health Association.

This year the Junior League's annual entertainment is to be a movie showing intimate views of the North Pole flight by Lieutenant-Commander Richard E. Byrd, first man to fly over the pole. It will be held at Symphony Hall next Sunday evening.

With the leaflets that Thomas will drop during his flight over Boston will be a number of slips outlining the order in a pair of tickets for the entertainment. One of the slips when presented at the Boston Evening American office will be exchanged for tickets.

FOR HEALTH WORK.

The Junior League's annual entertainment is the only means of revenue for the league's contribution to the Community Health Association. The funds are given for the support of a nurse and social service work.

At Symphony Hall Sunday night Mrs. Carleton H. Palmer, president of the Association of Junior Leagues of America, will introduce the North Pole flight hero. A large number of Junior Leaguers will act as ushers.

TOM MEIGHAN AS 'CANADIAN' IS PLEASING

By LEO GAFFNEY

Apparently, a wheat field of Alberta is harder to dig up in a New York studio than, say, a few lower peaks of the Andes. For one reason, then, Tom Meighan and Director William Beaudine shook the dust of the Borough of Queens from their shoes and "The Canadian" was filmed in Canada.

Mona Palma

As it is now exhibited on the Metropolitan there is steadily borne upon you the conviction that whoever lays out the path jobs for Mr. Meighan use conscience for perpetrating the hackyard mountains in "Tin Gods," the first Meighan fancy work, and now makes it up to you with miles of real scenery.

There is a story, too, with a startling lack of the usual novel faking in it; the characters are as real as life itself. It's all about a poor homesteader who, one way or another, is not, that's Thomas M., who marries a wife simply to "cook, care and clean" for him.

The easily assumed wife, formerly of Grade A social rank, naughtily takes him up on the proposition and being the only way out for her. How the proud beauty adapts herself to the luxuries of a two-room shack and eventually makes good in her domestic responsibilities furnishes an interesting yarn and, to spell a hard touch of drama.

Meighan sails along smoothly and hits off his best characterization in years. Beaudine, who has been doing great things for Mary Pickford of late, makes his actors fit into the bleak locale and allows no "pose"—pretty or otherwise. Even the heroine is forbidden to be "cute"—and that rather forcibly introduces Mona Palma, freshly graduated from the Paramount training school and, if all goes well, unquestionably a star of the future.

Two others easy to mention are Dale Fuller, a wonder as usual as another farmer's wife, and Charlie Winninger, lately acquired from nineteen other films, who does a humorous character bit with all aplomb he displayed in "No, No, Nanette."

On the stage this week the chief attraction is Frank Cumbis's "Roaring Gypsies," a merry musical act in which a group of singers and dancers pleasingly dispose themselves amid Bavarian localities of leafy forest setting. Another feature is the singing of the Boston University Glee Club, whose voices in a popular repertoire. Short films and other features complete the bill.

FARBMAN IS SYMPHONY SOLOIST

By MOSES SMITH

Harry Farbman, violinist, was the soloist at the third concert of the People's Symphony Orchestra at Jordan Hall. Before a large and exceedingly friendly audience, he played with the communicativeness of the master. Occasionally he minor violin concerto.

The performance was very much applauded—so much, in fact, that the violinist broke into the routine of the concert sufficiently to play several extra solo numbers without accompaniment. It was rather an unusual triumph. Mr. Farbman did his best playing, as a matter of fact, in the extra numbers.

Stuart Mason conducted the orchestra in three other numbers. A short Symphony in D major opened the program and "Piet Hein," a rhapsody on a Dutch folk song by Peter van Anrooij, closed it. In between the players and conductor did excellent work with Henri Heubaldi's "La Procession Nocturne."

The men surprised in their rendition of the last-named piece, especially in the second half of the number. There was an unusual sonority attained by the strings and sounded fully, and the interpretation was worked up to a very fine climax.

Unfortunately, the success of the piece was due to Mr. Mason's understanding conception of the Frenchman's score, rather than to any ardor or enthusiasm to carry out his wishes well, outstanding among the many cases under which it works, is double cause for congratulation.

FOOTBALL FILM AT FENWAY

With showing of "College Days" at the Fenway, the football film season may be regarded as officially on.

In a way, this can be regretted, for this season brought the best football pictures in years, and the "College Days" strikes with the best of them.

The story is by A. P. Younger, who wrote the screen version of "Brown of Harvard," and is well known how to stretch college life for the film followers. The grid scenes naturally bring the story to its exciting climax, but a good many will probably find the romantic sequences equally entertaining.

Marceline Day, who sweetens every movie she appears in, and Grant Mitchell—Charles Delaney take the leading roles.

By way of sharp contrast the Fenway is also showing one of the most spectacular of the South Seas films, "Paradise," which Milton Sills and Betty Bronson are co-stars.

JOLLY JOY RIDERS IN 'SUMMER BACHELORS'

EASY INSTRUCTION

Auto driving made simple—and pleasant—in "Summer Bachelors" at the New Boston. Madge Bellamy is the insouciant student and Hale Hamilton is the pleased teacher.

IRENE RICH AT MODERN

Melodrama, in opposing variety, is provided in the bill of new photoplays at the Modern and Beacon theatres this week, where the routine is a combination of Irene Rich and Clarence Burton's movie, "Mr. 1127 Is All Wife," the real name of which is Irene Rich-Conway Tearle-Jane Winton, the season's most interesting combination of players.

Irene Rich

Most fathers will feel a lot more like Santa Claus—either they've looked through The Shop-o-scope's offers of "Gifts for Children."

FUN FEATURES FILM AT NEW BOSTON

Tramp, tramp, tramp, the wives are marching—to the mountains, to the beaches, to the steamer gangplanks, leaving their husbands "summer bachelors"—to their offices, to their clubs, to their lonely nest and to!

The answer is fully and hilariously found on the screen at the New Boston this week where the new film, "Summer Bachelors" is now enjoying it's first downtown presentation.

Based on Warner Fabian's story of the same name, recently printed serially in the Boston Evening American, this lightly diverting comedy with three very amusing husbands who speed the parting wife on her vacation and then rush for a telephone booth to call up the favorite blonde.

The piquant Madge Bellamy is the principal "favorite," so there is little provocation for the tempted husbands. A cast of outstanding players support Miss Bellamy, including Alan Forrest, in the role of the "summer bachelor" and Lee Moran in the story; Matt Moore, in the part of Walter Blakely, is a typical "summer bachelor" and Lea Hyams is the Summer girl.

The remaining husbands who add to themselves to the ardors of single cussedness dancing spell are Hale Hamilton, Charles Gerrard, Walter Catlett and Owen Bellew. Olive Tell plays the positive matron who goes to the country in spite of choice evidence of her hubby's fruitesome nature.

A bright bill of vaudeville is also presented at the Boston, featuring Fred Delmar and his "Fighting Lions"; Teck Murdock and company in a miniature musical comedy; Marie Wales and Frank Ellis in the comedy skit, "Ours Is a Nice House, Ours Is"; Juliette Dika in international songs, and The Three Collegians in a novelty. Short films complete the program.

LARGE AUDIENCE GREETS McCORMACK

John McCormack, who gave his second concert of the year at Symphony Hall last night, found the combination of his voice and the piano still unimpaired. Appearing a few days ago as witness in the Fall-Doheny trial at Washington, Mr. McCormack had only enough time to make a hurried getaway on a midnight train from Boston yesterday morning.

JOHNNY HINES SCORES IN NEW FILM

Johnny Hines

Hustling Johnny Hines does some "all I' Stepping Along" in his new film comedy of that name now running at the Washington Street Olympia. As the Charles Lindbergh of the cheering New York Associated man to elect who would rather be "right" with the girl than be president, he does, nevertheless, get on very well in the political arena and finishes up in the last reel with the cheers of victory ringing loud in his ears.

What the humorous merely precede a series of lively comedy antics in which smiling Johnny is seen as a newsboy and in the favors of Tammany and the blushing approval of "Molly Payne," his starchy sweetie enacted in the refreshing person of Mary Brian.

How the lengthy fun makes the grade on both counts, wins votes with his girl and tussles up a shiny-nickel goodies bonus for wide-awake entertainment in the best talents of the brothers Hines—Charlie H. at the saxophone and.

The production was made entirely on Gotham terrain, and ties to the Hines Studio, West 56th and All Around the Town." Coney Island comes in for a picturesque share in the scenario, and Brooklyn Bridge, Park Row and the Tenderloin pass realistically in view, with a snappy exhibition of the "Black Bottom" energetically interpreted and contributed by the dazzling cornphoses of the George White "Scandals."

In the Coney Island sequence, an interpolated troupe of midgets to a double-shuffle "wow," as a tough gang of Bowery babes who might easily be suspected of residing in the vicinity of "the winnegar wells."

The Bickford Family Revue is the headline act of the Olympic vaudeville bill for the week. The Volunteers have a song novelty; Du Callon contributes monologue, and other turns and short films make up the program.

Mildred Davis Returns to Screen Soon

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 13—Mildred Davis' frequently postponed plan to return to the screen is to materialize in a play called "Too Many Crooks." This time, according to the powers that be at Famous Players-Lasky. Mildred Davis is Mrs. Harold Lloyd's return is no myth, but is based on actual fact.

I made sure of this before I printed the story, for last year Preferred Pictures let it be known that Mrs. Lloyd was to make "The Old Fashioned Girl" for them.

A year passed and nothing happened, and, after all, even in the slow moving cinema world twelve months is a long time to await developments.

Now, about this "Too Many Crooks." It is a fresh story by F. Raft, and the petite Mrs. Lloyd, with the blonde hair and pretty face, will be surrounded with one of Paramount's best supporting casts. While they were not ready to announce the director, I hear from a reliable source that either Donald Crisp or Larry Semon will do the megaphone honors for Miss Davis.

OUT OF THE CROP OF BROADWAY PLAYS that Norma Talmadge saw when she was in New York one remained in her mind. "A Woman Disputed," which stars Lowell Sherman and features Ann Harding and Louis Calhern. She thought so well of it that when she came home she decided it would make an admirable picture.

Mildred Davis.

Result, Joseph Schenck got out the well-known check book and bought the screen rights for what will, in all probability, be Norma's best picture, following "Camille."

SOUP AND THE NEW IDEA

What is soup? It is food in hot, liquid form. Why is it a food? Because it nourishes and invigorates. Why is it desirable for us to eat food in this hot, liquid form? Because it is so delightful and satisfying to the taste and because it has such a splendidly wholesome, healthful effect upon the appetite and the digestion. The old idea about soup was that it should always be served at formal meals and special occasions, but only every once in a while at the family meals. Soup was then considered as a kind of special luxury, a display dish when "company" came or as an extra dish to be offered to the family only at intervals.

But nowadays soup is no longer just an occasional dish. It is a regular part of the daily diet as it should be.

Condensed soups are responsible for this beneficial change. It was perfectly natural that the housewives of forgone days should avoid all the trouble and expense of making soup at home. The new knowledge of dietetics had not yet come to teach the importance of healthy appetite and how to develop it. Condensed soups had not yet been placed on sale at every food store in such convenient, already-prepared form that the service of soup became simply a matter of keeping the pantry shelf supplied.

Are you keeping in step with the latest, up-to-date knowledge of proper nutrition? Are you letting these great spotless soup kitchens save you work and add daily brightness and healthfulness to your meals? If not, you will be doing your family and yourself a real service by starting today with the regular use of soup.

A flavor your guests will remember

Turn the bottled magic of Mapleine to a thousand uses! Would you flavor your cakes, puddings, pies or candies with something so good your guests will remember and ask you for the recipe? Then you will use Mapleine! Its distinctive flavor and varied home uses have made it a household necessity from Coast to Coast.

In the morning ask your grocer for Mapleine.

SPAGHETTI IS APPETIZING

You'll see I'm still harping this week on recipes which will ease the Christmas strain on Mr. Budget. In counting our penny-savers we can't afford to overlook the many delicious, wholesome macaroni, spaghetti and egg noodle dishes. One of the newer items in the canned food world is spaghetti cooked in just-right tomato sauce. This food not only is a perfect meat substitute, being just as substantial, healthful and nourishing, but—very important—the price is half that of meat. Best of all, this ready-prepared spaghetti is so delicious, so easily digested and so satisfying that it is welcomed alike by the dainty eater or invalid or the heartiest appetite. It is excellent for building up young bodies and for giving strength and vigor to the whole family. Chief of the ingredients used in making this ready-prepared spaghetti is Farina—the heart of the wheat—which contains just the food elements that build flesh, tissue, red blood and bone.

This ready-cooked product may be heated right from the can and served "as is," with a sprinkling of grated cheese, or it can be combined into an endless number of delicious dishes. The one we have chosen for today is:

SPAGHETTI WITH CHICKEN LIVERS AND MUSHROOMS.

Melt 1 tablespoon of butter and add 1 mild onion chopped fine and ¼ pound of peeled mushrooms. Cook slowly for five minutes, taking care not let burn. Then add 1 tablespoon of flour, ½ cup of consomme soup, 1 cup of stewed canned tomatoes and cook for fifteen minutes. Season with ½ teaspoon of salt and ¼ teaspoon of pepper.

Cut up four chicken livers (you can purchase them separate from the chicken from your butcher) and fry them in 1 tablespoon of butter. Add them to the sauce. Heat 1 can of cooked spaghetti; pour over it this mushroom sauce, cook for two minutes to heat thoroughly and serve very hot.

POP-OVERS THAT POP

Sift one cup flour and ¼ teaspoon salt. Add 1 cup milk gradually, then two eggs beaten and 1 tablespoon melted shortening. Beat batter five minutes with an egg beater. Pour into hot buttered muffin pans or earthen cups. Bake in a hot oven 30 minutes. Reduce heat to a moderate oven and bake 15 minutes. Do not open oven door while baking. This recipe makes 10.

PINEAPPLE CHARLOTTE

Line short glasses with 3 small strips of sponge cake. Beat 1 cup cream until stiff. Add 3 tbsps. sugar and fold in ½ cup pineapple cubes. Fill the glasses with the whipped cream mixture and let stand in the ice box one hour. Garnish with maraschino cherries, chopped fine. Serves 6.

EVAPORATED MILK DOUBLE RICH IN BUTTER FAT

A quart of ordinary cow's milk makes less than a pint of evaporated milk. Explanation of this lies in the fact that evaporated milk has less than half of the water content of ordinary milk.

RASPBERRY BAVARIAN

Dissolve 1 package raspberry gelatin in 1 cup boiling water, with ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Add 1 cup cold water. Chill. When it begins to thicken beat in ½ cup cream (whipped) till well blended. Mold and chill. Serve with or without cream and raspberries. Serves 8.

FOR PICKING OUT PIN-FEATHERS from a fowl, an ordinary strawberry huller will be found excellent.

TWO DELICIOUS DESSERTS

Bananas are one of the foods that I consider a staple in my pantry, jot as I do butter, eggs, milk and cheese, for this friendly fruit stands by in every culinary emergency.

At least two or three mornings a week we start our breakfast off with bananas sliced into or over our cereal. And the all-popular fruit salad which begins so many dinners is always improved by a generous proportion of banana slices. The fact that a fault I berate my family badly for is leaving banana skins a sundry ash trays and bonbon dishes, clearly indicates their liking for this wholesale fruit which has been protected so carefully by Mother Nature from contact with hat and dirt of everyday life.

Here are a few banana suggestions that I think will be as popular with your family as with mine:

Banana and Applesauce—Slice a good ripe banana in halves. Over this put a generous portion of applesauce and cover with whipped cream.

Banana Dessert—Heat 1 pint of milk in double boiler to scalding point, add 2 tsps. cornstarch, which has been mixed with ¼ tsp. salt, ½ cup sugar and ¼ cup cream or milk, cook thirty minutes, stirring frequently. Stir slowly into 2 well-beaten egg yolks, return to double boiler and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Be careful not to cook too long or the mixture will curdle. And instead of smooth and creamy, it will be brainy in appearance. Add ½ tsp. lemon extract and 1 tsp. orange extract and put in cold place.

Cut sponge or plain cake in slices and arrange in a large glass dish, alternate layers of cake and sliced bananas, having the bottom layer of cake and the top one of bananas. Pour over it the cold custard. Beat the egg whites until stiff and dry, add powdered sugar to taste, and flavor with orange extract. Pile lightly and frequently on top of custard, and serve very cold.

"BREAKFAST" in
Baker's Breakfast Cocoa
Means Something

The United States Food Standards define "Breakfast" cocoa as cocoa containing not less than 22 per cent of cocoa butter. Many cheap cocoas (which cannot be labelled "Breakfast" Cocoa) contain not more than 14 per cent or 15 per cent of butter.

Baker's Breakfast Cocoa contains not less than 30 per cent of cocoa butter, almost one-fifth more than Government requirement. The phrase Baker's Breakfast Cocoa means a pure, delicious cocoa of high quality and possessing a considerable amount of nourishment.

We make
New England
a neighborhood

In building Neighborhood Toll Service, that was one of the toughest nuts we had to crack. Here's the kernel.

If the number you want is outside the area covered by your own telephone directory, ask your local information Operator to supply it.

Call her to learn a distant number, just as you would for the number of a new telephone in your own exchange.

Make a note of it for future use. You may wish to repeat the same call. Most toll users do, and there are advantages in building up a list.

If you wish it, your local manager will make up for you a list of distant numbers you frequently call.

DANCES RUIN OF GLEASON, SOBS MOTHER

"The cheap, tawdry dance halls of Boston, with their 'shoot-the-chute' girls and villainous liquor," are blamed by a heart-broken mother for the plight of Herbert Gleason 2d, accused slayer of James Mengazis, Medford shopkeeper.

"Herbert was a good boy till he got in with these dance and night clubs and streets," his mother sobbed, as she told of the evil influences that turned a clean-minded, wholesome boy into an alcohol crazed thug and slayer.

Gleason, cool and indifferent, is in the East Cambridge jail, in the shadow of the electric chair, awaiting trial for the slaying of the Medford man. The boy has confessed that he shot Mengazis down when the latter resisted an attempt and a companion endeavored to rob the store several weeks ago.

CRAZED WITH LIQUOR.

"My boy was crazed with liquor when he killed that poor man," the mother continued, between sobs. "He never would have done it in his right mind.

"Although he is my son and I love him better life itself, I am sure his mind is effected from the poisonous liquor he was been drinking around the dance halls he frequented."

The mother is in Boston doing everything within her limited power to aid her boy in his forthcoming fight for life.

"He is the pride of my life," the mother declared," and although I realize that I have been divorced for many years, I know the boy is the greatest thing in his father's life."

"Until about two and a half years ago, Herbert was a model boy. He never had a vicious habit or bad word an unkind thought.

"Then he fell in with some companions who took him to a public dance. After that he was different. He would stay away from home later and later each night. Often his breath would smell of liquor when he arose the next morning.

"These girls at these dance halls would stay out and drink with Herbert and his friends and of course this cost money.

MET CURRY AT DANCE.

"Herbert fell in with Peter Curry at one of these dance halls. Curry is the boy, whom the police say, was with Herbert in the awful holdup. The pair became fast friends, and that meant a continuous round of the dance halls for Peter was a sort of exhibition dancer.

"These boys did not have the money to buy liquor for themselves and their girls. 'This liquor, I am convinced, affected both of their minds, and in that condition, with these girls constantly wanting funds for a good time, they planned the holdup as an easy way to get money for more good times.'

To bear out her statement, Mrs. Gleason told of how her son greeted her after she followed him to the East Cambridge jail from her home in Maine.

STARTED AFTER HIM.

"As soon as the officers caught Herbert in my home in Maine, and took him back to Boston, I started after him, although I didn't know what he had been arrested for.

"On the train I bought a newspaper and it told me of my boy confessing to this awful crime. I was frantic. I rushed to the station as my train landed in the North station, and rushed to my boy's cell.

"I had come 500 miles to be near him, but he took one look at me and then stared in a cold voice 'What are you crying about? Why should you be crying? I did this and you don't see me crying, do you?'

"Such talk certainly shows my poor boy's mind is ill, and I shall do everything in the world I can to save him from going to the electric chair."

Baseball Moguls Meet Braves in Market Pitcher May Go

Bob Quinn Vehement He Will Stick Here Club Not for Sale

BRAVES MAY GIVE PITCHER FOR FIRST BASEMAN

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—The National League is gathered here today, preparing for the annual meetings tomorrow. All the Boston Heydler club owners, managers and a throng of minor league officials are milling around the lobby of the Waldorf. The boys always pull in a day ahead of time to talk things over and to try to engineer a few deals. Judge Fuchs of the Braves and Manager Dave Bancroft are running around after a first baseman. They may get a big leaguer because they have a lot of trading material and are willing to do some swapping. Danny has pitchers and all the other managers want them. Every club in the league would like to get Joe Genewich. Joseph has been an uncertain quantity in Boston. He is what they call and in and outer, good for a stretch and then woefully poor. But he always manages to tear off some sort of a winning streak that calls national attention to him.

He finished the 1926 campaign in a blaze of pitching glory. He may be shifted, if the Wigwam heads think they can get full value in return. They have enough youngsters to take a chance on cutting one regular loose. Only trouble is that there are not many first basemen who can be pried apart. Teams that have good ones want them. Each manager is willing to make concessions, though, if he thinks he can get help for his pitching department. Danny and the Judge will be figuring on that.

This National League meeting will not close up so tight as the cliff his enclosed Judge Landis and he unanimously voting to give the Commissioner a free hand to go after baseball's lost money. Any Landis trouble will come up at the joint meeting of the leagues in Chicago Thursday. And indications are that the opponents of baseball's fountain in the A. L. have decided to call off wars. If

BOB QUINN REALLY MEANS TO KEEP SOX

BOB QUINN, writing from Columbus, seems considerably excited about the usual Winter report that Charley Adams and other Boston capitalists are about to buy the Red Sox. This same yarn is handed out and fostered by a number of young men who hope some fine day to get into baseball by talking somebody with real money into buying one of the local clubs.

Writes Bob: "Charley Adams or any other person or persons have made no offer for Red Sox. Neither has the team ever been on the market. We went into Boston to put the city back on the baseball map and consequently it is a matter of pride with us to make good and we intend to stay until we have accomplished what we set out to do. Therefore, about a month ago we went out and secured Carrigan that would prove to the Boston public we are sincere. We have started something, and we'll be right there to the finish."

That closes the case very definitely for one more year.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

WHILE there are thousands of absent-minded people in this country, the prize goes to the man who sat in the bathtub an hour and a half the other night trying to think what he got in there for.

BUT it's just as well he didn't remember, because he had neglected to take his clothes off.

HE'S the same fellow who set up until two o'clock one morning trying to remember something he had planned to do. He finally thought of it. He wanted to go to bed early.

HE WAS worried sick. Something terrible had happened to him that day and he couldn't remember what it was.

HE DECIDED to get married the other afternoon but the neighbors spoiled his plans. They reminded him that he had a wife.

HE HAD a faint recollection of proposing to some girl but he couldn't remember whether or not she had married him.

WHEN his wife told him that they'd been married for ten years he was surprised. He asked her if they had any children.

HIS mind got so bad that he finally had to write for a memory course. But it didn't do him any good; he forgot to mail the letter.

HIS basement was ablaze the other night and he went downstairs with a lantern to look for the fire.

WHILE his wife was phoning for the fire department he was putting coal on the furnace.

HE SAID he wanted to have the house nice and warm so all the firemen wouldn't catch cold.

HE POURED gasoline on the fire to keep it going until they got there.

HE COULD have put the fire out, but he didn't want the fire department to miss the fun.

HIS wife wanted him to save some of their belongings, so he went in the house and started dragging outside.

THEN he ran back into the house and grabbed his check book.

HE SAID he didn't want the fire to burn up every nickel he had in the bank.

THEN his memory went bad again. When the fire engines came he couldn't remember why he'd sent for them.

AND when he finally did think of it, it was too late, he'd forgotten where the fire was.

DO YOU KNOW THAT---

Man's early inclination toward art frequently found expression through examination of various forms of nuts, and his drinking vessels were fashioned in imitation of the halved coconut or some other hard shell protecting the kernel. In India ancient dippers were made of nutshells, and specimens of antiquity are now on exhibition at the Indian Museum, South Kensington, London. King Henry VI possessed a silver vessel made like a nut in 1454. Chinese carvers still work artistic devices on nutshells. In Tibet Buddhist priests often possess rosaries comprising more than 100 beads, all made from carved nuts.

The seaweed collected along the Breton coast brings in about $5,000 a year. The first factory for the manufacture of iodine, its most valuable product, though seaweed is also an important source of potassium and sodium, was established as long ago as 1829 at Conquet in Britany.

Cloth that is guaranteed not to crease has been invented. It is not yet on the market.

The home of General P. G. T. Beauregard, distinguished Confederate officer, in New Orleans, will not become a macaroni factory. When a company was about to buy the ground on which the general's house stands for a factory, the Beauregard Memorial Association agreed to buy it and a first payment of $4,000 has bound the contract.

Too many holes, due to overworking of the yeast, and lack of salt, were two common faults in a recent bread-making competition held for ships in the Mediterranean fleet.

Wigs were quite commonly worn in Egypt 3,000 years ago. Recent excavations in Bedfordshire disclosed human remains which suggest that wigs were also worn in England about 1200 B. C.

MEDITATONS OF A WIFE--BY HELEN ROWLAND

By HELEN ROWLAND

RECENTLY a man known far and wide as a "model husband" was arrested for embezzling half a million dollars.

The only mystery about this is that the world was so astonished! What has embezzling, forgery or mayhem got to do with knowing how to make a woman happy, or being pleasant at breakfast?

A man may be a talented Charleston dancer, a brilliant saxophone player, or a glittering golf champion, and still be weak on his moral lesson, and he may be the leader of the choir and the president of the Board of Aldermen, and still be a total failure as a husband!

* * *

The mere fact that a man is a genius in one direction doesn't signify that he is a shining light in another.

Being a HUSBAND is an art in itself! It is the most highly specialized "calling" in the world! It requires a GENIUS all its own!

A genius for understanding woman! A genius for sensing her moods and vagaries as a master mechanic senses the vagaries of a temperamental second-hand car.

A genius for knowing what to say and how and when to say it, for doing the tender, thoughtful thing at the right moment; and for keeping QUIET and putting on all the brakes at the first danger signal in her eyes.

* * *

Oh yes, being a husband requires infinitely more genius than most folks admit! And lots of men who believe themselves perfectly good husbands are merely bungling amateurs, who would handle a delicate French racing car exactly as they would a Ford motor-truck—and then wonder why it skidded and upset!

* * *

Many a big, bluff, honest "man's man" wonders why his wife winces at everything he says or does, from the moment he bursts into the front door until he bangs out of it. But while a riveting machine is useful and solid and sinless, it is not exactly the ideal "chamber music" for a nervous woman.

A "man's man" is the salt of the earth—but a "woman's man" MUST have a little of the sugar and honey in his make-up. And a gentleman-burglar or a nice quiet forger who tip-toes downstairs and puts on the coffee for breakfast is more entertaining than a Sunday-school superintendent who complains every time the waffles are scorched.

* * *

An embezzler who shaves twice a day and brings home candy and theatre tickets makes a bigger hit as a domestic companion than a solvent bank president who growls over his mutton chop, and goes to sleep after dinner.

Some of our most notorious crooks and murderers have been flawless and beloved husbands. And some of our most famous authors, poets, impresarios and millionaires have been total failures as husbands.

* * *

And, in all history, there have been very few men, like Solomon, who could qualify both as a "man's man" and a "woman's man"—and a kingdom, quite like an angel, and make seven hundred wives perfectly happy!

When You Catch Cold Rub On Musterole

Musterole is easy to apply and works right away. It may prevent a cold from turning into "flu" or pneumonia. It does all the good work of grandmother's mustard plaster.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made of oil of mustard and other home simples. It is recommended by many doctors and nurses. Try Musterole for sore throat, cold on the chest, rheumatism, lumbago, pleurisy, stiff neck, bronchitis, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back and joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet—colds of all sorts.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

STOP BAD BREATH

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

Olive Tablets bring no griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 15c, 30c and 60c. All druggists.

U. S. Idle Water Should Be Put to Work; Start Huge Program Now, Says Hoover

THERE is good reason for the growing national confidence in Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, manager of the water conservation program of the Coolidge Administration.

He is talking about something that INTERESTS the American people. He is not talking about spending billions to help Europe. He is talking about spending our money on great internal improvements in the United States.

He is uniting New York State and the Middle West on the magnificent project of a ship canal from the Great Lakes to the sea—bursting asunder the Gibraltar rock that separates our Mediterranean from the ocean.

Chicago and the Mississippi Valley find in Secretary Hoover a practical engineer who demonstrates the profit in a completed nine-foot waterway running 1,500 miles west from Pittsburgh to Kansas City and 1,500 miles south from Chicago to New Orleans.

Boston, Massachusetts and New England see cheaper coal and raw materials from the Federal Government taking over the Cape Cod Canal, modernizing it and making it toll-free.

Baltimore and Philadelphia merchants and manufacturers see their trade territory extended southward by working with Hoover to complete the fourteen-foot projected waterway for barges and small steamers extending from the Delaware River to the end of Florida, and, eventually, from the Delaware River north into New York Bay.

Atlanta, Birmingham, Chattanooga, Nashville—all the old South—are fired by the discovery of Hoover and the Army engineers that 3,000,000 horsepower of electrical energy can be generated on Tennessee and Cumberland rivers. That is over three times what we develop at Niagara. The dams and reservoirs that go with this development will also check the source of the most disastrous floods in the Mississippi Valley, and will, on the two rivers, provide a six-foot channel for navigation down to the Ohio and Mississippi.

New Orleans in Louisiana and Houston and San Antonio in Texas find Hoover planning the completion of a nine-foot inland waterway along the Gulf Coast marshes and inlets from the Mississippi to the Rio Grande, extending the traffic of the Mississippi River System clear down to the Mexican border.

Six other southwestern States unite with California in sharing the benefits of Colorado River development. Its first unit, Boulder Dam, is the especial care of Secretary Hoover, who has attempted the herculean task of reconciling the conflicting State interests. Boulder Dam will stop Colorado River floods, irrigate 1,000,000 acres, provide the city water vital to Southern California, supply hydro-electric power to the whole Southwest and, incidentally, finance the whole project by the sale of power and water. Eventually, the Colorado is to irrigate 6,000,000 acres and yield 6,000,000 horsepower.

In the inland empire of the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys in California there are 6,000,000 acres that can be irrigated by storing the Spring flow of rivers from melting Sierra snows. In the higher reaches of the mountains water-power will be generated, and as the water spreads on the irrigated lowlands a million new people will find homes.

Finally, the population of Washington, Oregon and Idaho will double when they realize Hoover's plan for the Columbia River Basin. In its drainage are over 3,000,000 idle horsepower. Reservoirs can irrigate 1,800,000 acres of land. Seattle, Portland, Spokane are leaders in the Hoover crusade for this project.

It is a NATIONAL program of internal improvements which Hoover, the engineer, tells us will add a thousand million dollars to our annual income. It makes the same appeal as the national internal improvements project of Washington, Gallatin and Hamilton; the Erie Canal of DeWitt Clinton, the Illinois-Michigan Canal of Abraham Lincoln, the conservation program of Roosevelt and Pinchot, and Roosevelt's Panama Canal.

The people like leaders with vision. Also they like to get something for their money.

Not all these projects are ready for active work; engineering investigations on some of them are still proceeding. Hoover's advice is to begin now "by proceeding with the projects that are certain."

That means that, when Congress meets, it should do two things:

(1) The Senate should pass the pending Rivers and Harbors Bill. It carries authorization for completing the Mississippi System, including the vital Chicago-Mississippi River link; also appropriations for the Atlantic and Gulf coastal waterways, and an appropriation for deepening the San Joaquin River for ocean vessels from San Francisco to Stockton, California.

(2) The Senate and House should pass the Swing-Johnson Bill, approved by President Coolidge and Secretaries Hoover and Work, providing for the immediate construction of the Boulder Canyon Dam on the Colorado.

Let's get started putting the idle waters of the nation to work for the people of the nation.

Needed: Tax on Dowries

Public comment on the dowries that go with American brides who marry foreign noblemen is now permissible since both the bartered brides and the bridegrooms in two conspicuous cases have taken their disputes into the courts.

When family quarrels over money cannot be settled privately, when appeals are taken to the public authorities, the subject is a proper one for public comment.

The recent publication from the court records of the marriage settlements of more than three million dollars for the sole personal use of the Duke of Marlborough, after his marriage to Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, and the case on trial of Count Salm and the daughter of Colonel E. H. Rogers, make every real American regret that provision in the Constitution of the United States which forbids the imposition of any tariff tax upon exports.

BEING SORRY ONLY THE FIRST MILE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

IN the chorus of a sentimental song there used to be the refrain:

"When I've said I'm sorry, what more can I do?"

The answer is:

"Don't do it again."

When a shopkeeper forgets all about my order and I call up about it and he tells me he forgot about it because of an extra rush or a shortage of help, instead of blaming the delivery boy or the telephone girl or saying the order must have been lost, I recognize him for an honest man and don't change shopkeepers—the first time.

The first time he says he is sorry I think more of him for telling the truth. But being sorry, or being honest, won't hold his trade if he continues to forget about my orders.

Being sorry is only the first mile.

Not doing it again is the important second mile.

The world in its infinite circumference holds few more irritating objects than the "sorriers"—those who continue to be sorry, at the same time continuing to do the same thing.

It requires only a tongue to say you are sorry, but it takes a backbone to overcome the thing you are sorry for.

Being sorry is just the beginning, and to continue to be sorry without doing more is to stay in the same place without advance.

In a small town in the Middle West lived a woman who was known as the prize repenter.

When the visiting evangelist held revivals each Spring she got converted each year without a skip.

Being sorry is an emotional state; carrying out the reform requires a cold-blooded determination.

When a person is really sorry the first thing he will do is to make a definite plan with definite steps to avoid a repeating of the thing he is sorry for.

Odds and Ends of the Town

BACK ON JOB

"CAPTAIN MOLLOY" is back on the job. To some that announcement means little, but to a large proportion of men who go down to the sea in ships, the statement that COMMANDER MOLLOY of COAST GUARD BASE 5 has recovered from his illness and has returned to his duties will be welcomed with a cheer. A brave officer and a gentleman, who during the war could number both American admirals and plain gobs among his friends.

ALL DEPENDS

"Terrible weather," we said to CHARLIE GREENBLATT, sartorial expert, when we ran into him during a storm. "The first decent weather we've had," he replied in all seriousness. We asked CHARLIE why he thought a visitation by frost, snow, sleet and slush should be good weather. "Great for the business," said CHARLIE. "It's an ill wind which blows the tailor a job."

HEART ON GRIDIRON

EDDIE MCMAHON, former UNIVERSITY OF VERMONT center and well known to GREATER BOSTON, has returned to his home in BROOKLINE for a short visit. He says football is still his favorite game, but the engineering business has allowed him few opportunities to see VERMONT in action.

GREETINGS

TRAFFIC OFFICER JIM FLYNN of the ARLINGTON police, exception of the dangerous crossing at LAKE STREET and MASSACHUSETTS AVENUE, has dispelled, to a great degree, that feeling of awe which every youngster has at the sight of a cop. Hundreds of school children, who await his signal when walking to and from the CHORLEY GRAMMAR SCHOOL hail him with a "Hi, Jim" and JIM, who has a faculty for remembering names, replies in kind.

YEAR 17, ABOY

CHINATOWN will on January 18 observe China's New Year. EACH CELESTIAL participating will have his hair cut in conformity with the ideas of the powers-that-be in China. Asked what year the celebration will mark, WONG GOW, the old man of Chinatown, counted 17, dating from the fall of the old Chinese Empire in 1916.

GETTING THE AIR

Wearing a snug fitting coat, adorned with bright brass buttons and a gold badge, DEPUTY SHERIFF JOHN F. GLYNN of ROXBURY remonstrated with a courthouse justice during a recess on the advisability of keeping a window open back of the jury box. GLYNN won his point and was complimented by the JUDGE for his foresight.

HOT ON TRAIL

JAMES E. MAGUIRE of the CITIZENS' TRADE ASSOCIATION of EAST BOSTON is hot on the trail of the "L" directors for curtailing surface car traffic in his section. In the next session of the LEGISLATURE he will sponsor some ideas calculated to bring about reforms for the benefit of the car riding public.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

MRS. ROTH has "gotten even" at last.

For three years she has been trying to get even. Way back in the Winter of 1923 Mrs. Wilson said something about Mrs. Roth.

To be exact, Mrs. Wilson said that Mrs. Roth was a "nagging old hen" and that Mr. Roth "didn't dare call his soul his own." To aggravate the offence, pretty Mrs. Wilson smiled on meek, henpecked Jim Roth and Jim smiled back. And Mrs. Roth caught them smiling.

Silly trifles? Yes, but out of those silly trifles Mrs. Roth has built a major tragedy. From the day she saw that smile and heard that idle chatter, Mrs. Roth has hated Mrs. Wilson. She hasn't hated her with the passing petulant dislike which most of us feel when criticised.

She has hated her with a thick, black hate that has permeated every thought of her mind, every act of her body. From a spasm of anger that hate has grown into a vicious cloud that overshadows all the world for Amy Roth.

And she vowed she'd get even. Three years ago she vowed she'd get even. For all that time she has bent herself toward keeping that vow.

Last week she had her satisfaction. Last week she caught silly little Clara Wilson in a compromising situation with a man who wasn't her husband. Another woman would have gone her way and sealed her lips.

But Amy went straight to Clara's hot-tempered husband. And before the sun had set he had drawn up divorce papers against his wife. She had broken Clara Wilson on the wheel—she was—even—

Cleared the Books.

Amy Roth really believes that she has "gotten even." She thinks that by this act she has equalized the wrong which Mrs. Wilson did her—that she has made a spiritual audit and cleared up the books. But has she? Let's do a little auditing ourselves.

For three years, thirty-six months, 1,095 days, Amy Roth has nursed a grudge against Clara Wilson. For all those days Hate has trickled its slow, dark poison through her system.

Now, the poison of hate is a very real thing. It isn't an imaginary menace. It's as real a venom as strychnine or arsenic. It produces backaches, hysteria, indigestion, melancholia and a host of other vicious ailments.

Made Her Suspicious.

For 1,095 days Hate has produced those reactions in Amy Roth. It has made her suspicious, irritable and a self-pity addict. It has caused a series of quarrels with her family—quarrels which have increased in bitterness.

It has crushed the last vistage of her husband's affection and given him an everlasting contempt for her. Her continual harping on her grievances has exhausted the patience of all her friends. They are heartily sick of the Roth-Wilson feud and they unanimously condemn her recent action.

And yet Amy thinks she has "gotten even."

She hasn't gotten even. She has put herself hopelessly in the hole. She has magnified the trivial offence against herself a million times. Nothing Mrs. Wilson could ever have done to her could approach in viciousness what Amy has done to herself.

That's the way revenge works. It's the poorest investment we can possibly make. Every grudge, no matter how "justifiable," is a cancer in the life of the one who harbors it.

REAL Competition

55,000 CARLOADS of It!

While one hundred men from nearby farms, meeting at the State House in this city, were discussing better methods of marketing their products, an "expert," appearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission in New York, was testifying that the New England farmer is amongst the most fortunate of his kind.

The man who offered this testimony is H. W. Moorhouse, described in the dispatches as the "analyst of a New York economic service."

Mr. Moorhouse, called by the Boston & Maine Railroad, which is asking for authority to jump its milk rates 20 per cent., said the income of New England farmers has "gone up steadily during the past three years."

And while in other regions taxes have trebled, during the past ten years, the expert said, in New England taxes have "only doubled."

In spots, it is true, the New England agriculturist HAS been doing well. Here, for example, is the report of the Farm Lands Loan Commission of the State of Maine, meeting in Augusta.

In the year 1923, applications came to the Commission from Aroostook County for farm loans aggregating $880,000. In the past two years, Potato Land has not made ONE such application.

That is what a "good potato year" means, especially when it is followed by another one.

On the other hand, as our friends were told at the State House, FIFTY-FIVE THOUSAND CARLOADS OF FRUITS AND VEGETABLES ARE BROUGHT INTO BOSTON EVERY YEAR FROM OUTSIDE NEW ENGLAND.

In five years, Massachusetts growers have been forced to surrender to outsiders first place in shipments of celery, asparagus, onions, beets and "even carrots."

How is the New Englander to meet this competition, recapture his own market?

First, the authorities brought together by the agricultural committee of the New England Council advised, by standardizing grades and packages, by branding their packs, and by a systematized campaign of advertising.

The present plan is to authorize the six State departments of agriculture to establish voluntary standard grades for farm products, these grades to be uniform throughout New England.

Whether it is true that the income of the New England farmer has gone up steadily we do not know. Perhaps it has. If it has not, the farmer is in a class all by himself. And was the witness speaking of "gross," or "net" income?

However that may be, the New England agriculturist is wise to begin a battle for the home market. The first step on the way out of your difficulties is to understand them. This Boston meeting was significant testimony that our friends of the farm know what their troubles are and are determined to master the problem of better marketing.
